

Evolution Again Arouses World Of Scientists

Trial of Tennessee Instructor For Teaching Evolution of Man Has Aroused Great Discussion—Why the Law Was Passed.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, June 9.—Tennessee's famous evolution law, under which young Professor "Johnny" Scopes is to be tried and probably convicted for teaching high school students that they evolved from lower forms of life through natural processes, was passed because an overwhelming majority of Tennessee's law makers believe that the theory of evolution "interferes with the Bible."

And it would pass again if put to the test. The uproar that the law has caused, the ridicule heaped upon it by scientists and men of learning generally have in no way operated to change the minds of Tennessee legislators on this point.

These facts were disclosed today when International News Service invited a number of Tennessee legislators to explain their votes on the measure. Opinions on both sides were sought, and the replies afford an interesting insight into basic underlying motives that inspired the adoption of this much talked of legislation.

One legislator, Senator W. Mack Fuqua, of Nashville, who did not vote for or against because he was denied the privilege of debating it, frankly declared the law was passed because the representatives of the rural districts were afraid to vote "no" and then explain it back home where fundamentalism is as taught from the cradle.

"My objection to the bill," he said, "was not based upon whether the theory of evolution was inconsistent with the Bible, but rather on the principle that church and state should be separate for governmental reasons. Their attempted unity has left blood stained tracks through the pages of European history."

"Most legislators supported the measure because they were afraid of a possible public sentiment, especially in rural districts, where religious principles are more devoutly entertained and exercised. It is easier to vote for it than to explain to the people back home."

"Lack of moral courage to vote convictions was largely responsible for the passage of this measure, as for many others."

But Senator Fuqua was woefully in the minority. The bill passed the senate 20 to 6, and the house 89 to 3, illustrating the unanimity of Tennessee belief in this matter.

Some of the explanations of votes follow:
Senator W. P. Monroe, Maynardville: "Modernism as represented by evolution denies the Scriptural scheme of creation. If it could be established that one part of the Bible is a myth or fake it would naturally follow that word as a whole is foundationless. I recognize in evolution an effort to destroy the Bible and its influence, despite the fact that what we are today we owe to the Bible and to the teachings of Christ. It was upon this hypothesis that I favored the bill."

"I voted for the evolution law because the Bible plainly explains how man was created."

Senator V. French Grubb, Chattanooga: "I voted for the measure because I believe in the origin of man as taught in the Bible and because the state has the absolute right to direct the expenditure of its public funds in the education of children."

Senator Roy C. Wallace, Lenoir City: "I voted for the law because I thought it a good one. Every intellectual person believes in evolution in many forms so long as it does not conflict with the Holy Bible. I noticed that Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia University, has stated that enactment of this law was a show of ignorance. All Tennesseans would be rather more or less ignorant of some things than a dubbed an educated fool. I suppose he thinks it was a bunch of ignoramuses who led the nation into volunteerism in all our wars. I suppose he thinks it was a bunch of ignoramuses who helped break the Hindenburg line. The time has come when Tennessee will protect her young from the influence of such educated fools."

Senator Harry Whitefield, Clarksville: "I voted for the bill as a means to prevent teaching that the Bible is not true and also to conform to the will of the majority of my constituents. The bill provides that nothing should be taught that man evolved from a lower animal, because my colleagues did, that the Genesis story of creation is true and that Jesus was divine."

Senator Frank D. Fuller, Memphis: "I do not believe in the theory of evolution as applied after their kind. Most people in Tennessee believe the Biblical account of the creation of man. Denying the faith in God's word and man have destroyed all that is best in civilization. Teachers of evolution should not be permitted to discuss immoral ideas in the course of science."

Senator D. D. Humphreys, Johnson City: "This law plainly provides it is unlawful to teach in schools supported by the state any theory that contradicts the origin of man as taught in the Bible. I have the right to say what shall not be taught. The act in no way interferes with any religious idea in the state. If such actually came from the mouth of a man, such an idea taught to our children. This is being done by

Gold Star Mother From Rosendale

Mrs. Marie E. Bauer, One of Gold Star Mothers Who Have Been in France on Pilgrimage to Sons' Graves, Bails for Home.

Mrs. Marie E. Bauer of Rosendale is one of the forty-six Gold Star Mothers, who have been in France on a pilgrimage to the graves of their sons, and who sailed for home from Cherbourg on the United States liner Leviathan on June 2.

One of the events in a memorable week in the lives of the forty-six women was Ambassador Herrick's tribute to them at a reception in the ambassador's palatial home in the Avenue de la Motte-Picquet, Paris. Mr. Herrick was assisted in receiving by his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Parmelee Herrick. Tea was served in the garden where a half dozen camera men made photographs of the group.

The day following the reception at the American Embassy, Ambassador Herrick presented members of the delegation to M. Doumergue, president of the French Republic, at a reception in the Palais de l'Elysee. Members of the American diplomatic corps, and the consular service as well as many prominent personalities, were present.

CHINESE THREW MUD AT AMERICAN BLUEJACKETS.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Shanghai, June 9.—Mobs of Chinese threw mud today at American blue jackets stationed at the border settlement to guard foreigners from evict acts by the Chinese on general strike against all foreigners.

Chinese constabulary intervened and drove off the Chinese before the Americans were forced to take action.

Ten British river and coast steamers failed to sail last night and this morning because of a walkout of members of the Chinese seamen's union. The union threatens to call out enough men to tie up all shipping, including trans-Pacific and European liners.

Strike agitators are directing their strongest efforts against Japanese and British subjects in an attempt to affect a nation-wide boycott of all Japanese and British goods.

BODY OF BABY FOUND IN WALLKILL RIVER SUNDAY

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Two Goshen men while bathing in the Wallkill river on Sunday afternoon found the body of a girl baby which bore the marks of violence. The baby had been killed, physicians believe, when it was but an hour old. Its skull had been fractured and it had been stabbed three times in the back. The body was found in the river near the bridge on the Scotchtown road, near Goshen.

Fatal Automobile Crash.

some teachers in Tennessee and for these reasons I voted for the bill."

Four of the six members who voted against the bill explained their reasons as follows:

Senator Dr. C. Benton King, Brownsville: "I voted against the bill because I thought it was stupid to try to control thought of evolution."

"The theory of evolution does not credit the Bible. Any attempt to impede search for truth is an assault on all education and therefore intolerable."

Senator John H. Trice, Jackson: "I voted against the bill because I believed its enactment into law unnecessary. Would defeat the object sought, and would inflame the spirit of bigotry and demagogism."

Senator Cecil Sims, Nashville: "I voted against the bill because in the fundamental principle of the separation of church and state. This is the first step as evinced by a companion bill, to prohibit Jews from teaching in the public schools. This was defeated. I do not approve of legislative efforts direct or indirect, concerning the truth or error of either evolution or genesis. The Christian religion has survived centuries without legislative assistance and needs none now. Believing the Biblical injunction 'know the truth and the truth shall make you free,' and the Jeffersonian principle of freedom of thought so long as truth is left free to combat error, I opposed the bill."

Senator Frank D. Fuller, Memphis: "I opposed the bill because I saw no need for a conflict between science and the Bible. The passage of such regulatory laws is an insult to intelligence, and as a rule utterly fails to accomplish the purpose desired. I predicted if the bill became a law its effect would be to stimulate rather than retard the study and teaching of evolution, and that people who had never given the subject a moment's thought would become ardent evolutionists and attempt to propound the theories of which they had not the slightest intelligent conception. If one desired to broadcast evolution to the four corners of the earth the passage of this bill would be an active means to this end."

Duffner May Erect Cottages

But Not a Gas Filling Station, Rules the Zoning Board of Appeals, in Modifying Order of Board of Public Works.

The zoning board of appeals met in adjourned session at the office of Judge Clearwater, its president, on the afternoon of Monday at 2 o'clock, all the commissioners being present. After a careful consideration of the appeal of John Duffner for permission to erect two cottages and a gas filling station in the Eleventh ward, on the junction of the westerly side of Wall street and the easterly side of Fair street, the board affirmed the order of the board of public works denying permission to erect the same, and modified the order of that body by granting permission to erect the two cottages which Mr. Duffner says he desires there to erect. The order of the board is as follows:

At a meeting of the zoning board of appeals of the city of Kingston, New York, held at the office of the president on the 8th day of June, 1923.

Present, Alphonso T. Clearwater, president; James Graham Rose, vice president; John G. Van Etten, George E. Lowe, Samuel T. Levitas, commissioners.

In the matter of the appeal of John Duffner from the decision of the board of public works.

This appeal having been heard at a meeting of the board of public works, held at the city hall, in the city of Kingston, on the 2nd day of June, 1923, all the commissioners being present, and the appellant having been heard by John T. Cahill, his counsel, and Virgil B. Van Wageningen and residents of the locality having been heard in opposition to the granting of the application prayed for, and decision having been reserved until this day, it is now by the board unanimously adjudged:

First.—That the application for permission to construct and maintain a gas filling station be, and the same hereby is denied.

Second.—That the order of the Board of Public Works in relation thereto be and the same hereby is affirmed.

Third.—That the application to erect and maintain the two cottages which the appellant states he desires to erect on the property involved, be and the same hereby is granted.

Fourth.—That the order of the Board of Public Works with regard to the erection and maintenance of the said cottages hereby is modified and the appellant hereby is authorized to construct and maintain them.

In addition to the signed order, the board handed down the following opinion:

Zoning Board of Appeals of the City of Kingston.—In the matter of the appeal of John Duffner from the order of the Board of Public Works. Memorandum by the Commission.

It is the conclusion of the Board of Appeals that the integrity of the zoning ordinance should be upheld, and that there should be no departure from it except in cases where substantial injustice will be occasioned by the carrying out of its provisions or where their observance would result in practical difficulties or unnecessary hardships.

In our opinion this case does not come within the exceptions in so far as it relates to the application for the erection and maintenance of a gas filling station, and the application for permission to construct and maintain such a station is denied, and the order of the Board of Public Works in relation thereof is affirmed.

We see no objection to the erection and maintenance of the two cottages which the appellant states he desires to erect on the property in question, and therefore, the order of the Board of Public Works with regard to their erection and maintenance is modified and the appellant hereby is authorized to construct and maintain them.

NOTED OSTEOPATH DIED VERY SUDDENLY

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Buffalo, N. Y., June 9.—Dr. Hugh L. Russell, one of the country's outstanding osteopaths, died suddenly last night of heart disease. He had for his patients many wealthy New Yorkers and held the spotlight during the Pitt-Silliman divorce case in May 1922. Mrs. Silliman, mother of the baby Guy Silliman, had been one of Dr. Russell's patients. Dr. Russell testified at the hearing. His testimony, which bore upon the paternity of little Guy, was construed by Mrs. Silliman's friends as a breach of professional ethics, although the Buffalo osteopath's counsel and friends said that he had been forced by the court to talk.

Improvements on North Front Street

Building of New York Cloak and Suit Company To Be Enlarged by Jacob Joslovitz.

The march of commercial progress, which started some time ago on North Front street between Green street and Clinton avenue, has taken another stride in an improvement underway by Jacob Joslovitz to enlarge and reconstruct the building of the New York Cloak & Suit Company, at No. 33 North Front street. Excavators are at work preparing for the erection of walls for a subcellar at the rear over which an addition of forty feet in depth and thirty feet in width will be built to the store. The rear wall of the extension fronts on the boundary line at the new municipal auto park. The front of the building, being of frame covered with sheets of tin will be torn away and replaced with brick of a light color. The ceiling at the front of the present floor, which is low, will be raised to the same height as that of the rear of the store and continued through the forty foot addition thus making the ceiling which will be of arch design, of equal height and style of architecture. Architect LeDow of New York, who drew the plans for the improvements to the Paris Millinery on Wall street, has drawn the plans for the new reconstruction of the Joslovitz store and they are on a most elaborate scale.

The store fronts, as there will be two stores, each of fifteen feet frontage, will be of latest copper design with heavy plate glass at fronts and sides. The upper floors will be converted into offices for rental, the entrance to be at the side of the west end store. Under the building will be basement 65 feet in length with 12 foot ceilings which Mr. Joslovitz will use as an additional show and salesroom.

While the work of building the rear addition is going on Mr. Joslovitz will conduct a sale to reduce his stock, and when work to tear out the old store starts he will close his business until the completion of the improvements.

POLE FLIES ENDEAVOR TO REACH CAPE COLUMBIA.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Copenhagen, June 9.—Reports from Oslo today indicated meteorologists and representatives of the Dornier aeroplane works at Spitzbergen now believe the Amundsen-Ellsworth North Pole flyers are endeavoring to reach Cape Columbia. At that point relief could be sent to the party by a steamer expedition.

This belief is based on statements by members of the Amundsen expedition still at Spitzbergen, who said Amundsen told them that if he did not return by aeroplane within fourteen days, or was forced to descend, he would make his way to Cape Columbia.

"Dr." Valpaur Is Arraigned

Additional Cash Bail of $200 Furnished As Defendant Intends To Return To Europe For Credentials—Few Cases Ready For Trial.

County court convened Monday afternoon at which time the criminal calendar was called for the purpose of learning how many cases would be ready for trial at this term. District Attorney Traver announced that there would be several pleas of guilty and a number of cases would be disposed of in that manner but that he was ready in a number of other cases when reached. It is not likely that there will be more than two or three cases tried at this time. Difficulty in securing jurors will prevent any long term of court at this time.

In court Monday afternoon Edward S. Valpaur was arraigned and $200 cash bail was taken in this case in addition to the bail bond already put up. John W. Eckert appeared for Valpaur, who was indicted on two counts for practicing medicine without a license. "Dr." Valpaur was born in Alsace-Lorraine and is French by birth.

In 1914 when the war broke out he left suddenly as he did not desire to fight against the French, his native land then being under German rule. He came to the United States but in his haste he failed to secure proper credentials which would allow him to practice medicine in this country. He claims to be a graduate from Strasbourg university where he secured a degree of doctor of medicine as well as doctor of ministry.

In view of the fact that he intends this summer to return to Europe and secure evidence of his right to be admitted to practice medicine here additional bail was taken in the sum of $200 which he supplied in cash. The war and later financial reverses prevented him from returning to Europe before to secure this necessary evidence before he could be admitted to the practice of medicine in New York state. Valpaur is an expert in the manufacture of artificial limbs and in addition has compounded several medicines which he sells.

Court then went into recess until this morning at 10 o'clock when there will be further arraignments and probably pleas in at least two cases.

Smith Confident Issues Will Pass

Despite Attacks Made by Republican "Big Guns" Executive Is Confident Bond Issue Will Be Approved—May Call Special Session For Park Bill.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Albany, June 9.—Governor Smith has not been scared by the attack which the Republicans have made on his proposed $100,000,000 bond issue for public improvements of a permanent character.

Despite the fact the Republicans trained some of their "biggest guns" including Elihu Root, Henry L. Stimson, former Governor Nathan L. Miller and Representative Odgen L. Mills, on the governor's proposal, the executive still is confident the people will vote to approve it at this fall's election.

The governor has about recovered from an attack of old fashioned sore throat. When he has recovered completely, so he can use his voice again in public speaking, he plans to tell the people of the state some things about the bond issue.

Friends of the governor said today that as he viewed the situation the Republicans had used up about all their ammunition and that it had made little or no impression upon the voters as a whole.

In a joint statement, former Governor Miller and Representative Mills attacked the bond issue as nothing "more or less than a pork barrel."

If the proposal is approved by the voters, the Legislature for the next ten years will be authorized to appropriate $10,000,000 each year for public improvements.

The governor takes the position that improvements of a permanent character should be paid for through a bond issue and not out of current revenues. He has stated time and again that he believes it is wrong to make the taxpayers of today pay entirely for public improvements which will last from fifty to 100 years.

There is every indication that early this fall the governor, if his health permits, will stump the state in favor of both the $100,000,000 issue and the $200,000,000 bond issue for the elimination of grade crossings.

In the meantime the governor is trying to decide whether to call the Legislature into special session to pass a new state park appropriation bill. There are many at the capitol who believe the governor will issue a call for a special session within the next week.

Pleasant Relief From Heat Wave

Thermometers that were registering in the nineties last week today registered 78 degrees, and it would appear that the heat wave has been broken. Early this morning the skies were overcast and it looked as though rain would fall at any minute but as the morning advanced the sun peeped out from behind the clouds.

Monday night there was a decided cooling off of the atmosphere. About 7 o'clock that evening there was a vivid display of lightning and the thunder rolled threateningly, but the storm swept away to the south and only a few drops of rain fell in Kingston. In the western Catskills there was a severe electric storm and torrential rain.

CAPT. RICHTER'S HAND BROKEN DEFENDING ATTACK ON HIM

Richter of Saugerties was called to Quarryville to arrest a man named Charles Pierce of Tannersville, who it was alleged, was driving a Ford car while under the influence of drink and had also killed at Elliott's garage at Catsbaun. Pierce, it was stated, resisted arrest and was also stated, made an attack upon Captain Richter, and in defending himself, Richter struck Pierce and broke his right hand, which Dr. Luther Emerick had to set. Pierce, however, was taken to Saugerties and Monday morning in police court was held to await the action of the grand jury. On furnishing bail to the amount of $200 Pierce was released.

Drunken Drivers And Slot Machine Gamblers Plead

Sentences Handed Out to Those Who Plead Guilty and Counsel Assigned to Others Who Demand a Trial.

The criminal calendar in county court was reduced in size this morning when several defendants changed their former pleas of not guilty to guilty and were sentenced. Several others indicted by the last grand jury were arraigned before Judge Fowler by District Attorney Traver and entered pleas.

Augustus Mulford of Saugerties, indicted for having a slot machine in his possession, entered a plea of not guilty when arraigned. George Kaufman appeared for him and bail was fixed at $500.

Carl Kallop, indicted for grand larceny, first degree, charged with taking an automobile, entered pleas of not guilty to two indictments. Walter J. Miller appeared for him and bail was fixed at $1,000.

Melvin Williams of Clintondale pleaded guilty to driving a car while intoxicated when his case was moved for trial. His license to drive was revoked and he was fined $200, to be paid to the state of New York. Failure to pay the fine will mean one day in jail for each $50 of the fine. A further sentence of two months in jail was given but this portion of the sentence was suspended during good behavior and on condition he pay to the county of Ulster $100 to compensate the county for the prosecution. Failure to pay the fine will result in his being confined to jail for one day for each $10 of the $100 fine.

Several cases of defendants indicted for possessing slot machines were disposed of. In all of the cases a fine of $75 for the first offense was imposed. Those who pleaded guilty and were fined and paid were: Antonio Provenzano, Dionisio Mauro, Thomas Bono, Harry Jordan, Ira Decker.

Charles DeCicco, who pleaded guilty to the charge failed to pay his fine and announced he would go to jail for 15 days.

Alfred Castano of Highland, charged with two violations of the law in having slot machines at Highland and Marlborough, was fined $75 on the first charge and $25 on the second, a total fine of $100.

John David, charged with driving a car while intoxicated, entered a plea of not guilty. It is alleged he violated the law on October 5, 1924.

Addison Stratton, indicted for leaving the scene where an accident had taken place without first giving his name, changed his plea to guilty. F. C. Merritt, who appeared for him, requested that the court postpone the imposition of sentence until the next term of court. His bail bond was continued.

John Bruck, one of the young men who entered the store of A. D. Rose and took away a cash register, entered a plea of guilty to burglary third degree. F. C. Merritt appeared for him and asked that the imposition of sentence be postponed and Bruck given a chance to make good. District Attorney Traver stated to the court that he was willing to give the defendant a chance to make good but suggested that sentence be imposed and suspended. Judge Fowler sentenced Bruck to the Elmira State Reformatory and then suspended sentence during good behavior instructing Bruck to report to Probation Officer Service and take instruction from him as to when and where to report.

When Mr. Traver moved the trial of Roy Wise, charged with forgery, Walter H.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER

FROG, TOAD, GAVIAL

"I am seen when I wish to be seen and I am not seen when I do not wish to be seen," said the Wood Frog, croaking and blinking his eyes. "Well, it seems to me," said the Toad, "that you have things pretty much your own way."

"Things," repeated Mr. Wood Frog. "Things, did I hear you say?"

"You heard me say that it seemed to me you had things pretty much your own way," said Mr. Toad. "Poor, dear Toad," said Mr. Wood Frog. "I mustn't blame you. I must pity you. Poor, dear Toad, how sorry I feel for you. You're nothing but an ordinary, common toad, poor, dear Toad."

"You have called me poor, dear Toad too many times," said Mr. Toad. "I don't like it. What is the world do you mean? I don't understand all your excitement."

"Why, my dear Mr. Toad," commenced Mr. Wood Frog politely, "you said it seemed to you that I had things my own way. You should have said that I had myself my own way."

"Grunt," said Mr. Toad softly, "that sounds absurd."

"Maybe it does," said Mr. Wood Frog, "but it is the right way to speak—that is, for a wood frog. I can do what I like with myself. I am not a thing, but a creature. Yes, I'm a wonderful creature, the interesting Mr. Wood Frog."

"Humph," said Mr. Toad, "you don't mind praising yourself up a bit. I believe they like me around the gardens. I help all I can. And here in the zoo they want to show the people who come a-calling what a regular everyday toad looks like, a toad who doesn't brag or boast, but who is simply natural."

"But tell me how you managed to be seen when you wished to be seen and not seen when you did not wish to be seen," Mr. Toad urged.

"My handsome frog suit is of a dark brown color which matches the earth and the leaves which lie on the ground near the wooded brook where I lived. I could not be seen unless I took a great jump in the air. But I took that jump for I knew they were looking for one of my kind and I thought I'd like to belong to the zoo where so many famous animals and creatures are gathered together."

The Gavial crocodile, living not far off thought he should be given a chance, too.

"I am the only one of my kind in captivity," he said. "That is, I'm the first Gavial crocodile to be in a zoo."

"It's not such an honor to be in a zoo," said the other crocodiles. "Lots of creatures and animals and birds and snakes and monkeys are in a zoo."

"Of course," said Gavial. "You speak that way, all of you ordinary, regular crocodiles, because you are not rare. I'm as fine as though I were a side-show—only one of my kind here."

"What is a side-show?" asked the other crocodiles.

"A side-show is part of a circus, and I heard children talking about this the other day. The keeper also explained the difference between alligators and crocodiles. They asked him this."

"How absurd," said the crocodile, "not to know."

"Well, they weren't crocodiles, they were only children, so they can't be expected to know so much," said Gavial laughingly. "Anyway the keeper said that crocodiles and alligators were quite a lot alike in their ways. He said that we both weren't about eating our own children and that we both cared more for eating than for anything else in the world."

"He also said the crocodiles had pointed noses and the alligators have ordinary broad ones."

"Well, we should say so," the crocodile said, "we have long pointed noses and the alligators have ordinary broad ones."

"Splish, splash," said Gavial. "You like to be unusual, too. Well, the keeper told the children how rare and fine I was and that I was a creature and that I was the only one of my kind in captivity, and I was in a side-show folks would have to pay extra to see me."

"And then the children pretended I was a side-show and they took the part of a man standing outside the show shouting:

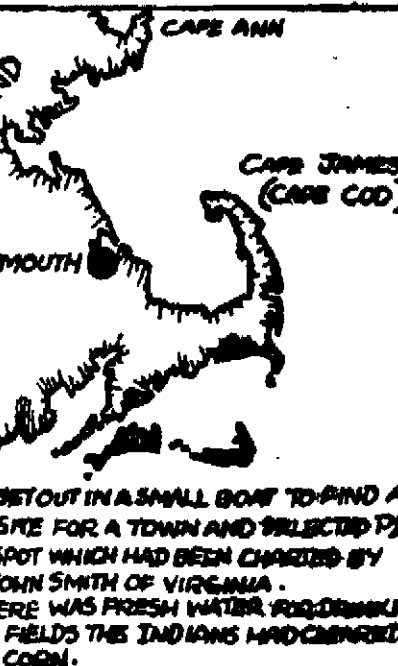

"Come and see the Gavial, the only one in captivity. They thought I pretty fine to see me then."

(By 1923, Western Newspaper Union.)

Oh, for a new generation of day dreamers. They will not ask whether life is worth living—they will make it so. They will transform the sordid struggle for existence into glorious effort to become that which they have admired and loved.

SUMMERY GOOD THINGS

Cooling drinks are much appreciated during the warm summer days. Try to have a variety of different juices, so that there may be something on hand at any time. Why has a delicious flavor when combined with fruit juices, and is especially wholesome.

Why Punch.—Take one cupful of whey, one and one-quarter cupfuls of sugar and boil together for five minutes. Cool and add a quart of water, the juice of two lemons and one cupful of shredded pineapple.

Why Sponges.—Take two cupfuls of whey, two tablespoonsful of gelatin, one-third of a cupful of water, two-thirds of a cupful of sugar, one egg white, one cupful of grated raw carrot, the grated rind of a lemon, the juice of half a lemon. Soak the gelatin in cold water, dissolve in hot water. Mix with the whey, add sugar and set the mixture in a pan of ice-water. When it begins to thicken around the edges, beat well with an egg beater, add the lemon rind and the juice and carrot. Fold in the well-beaten egg white and turn into a mold. Serve as a salad.

Tomato and Pear Salad.—Cut tomatoes into quarters and alternate them with quarters of ripe pears. Arrange on lettuce and serve with a highly seasoned salad dressing. Canned pears will be good, if the fresh are not obtainable.

Grape and Ginger Ale Jelly.—Heat a pint of grape juice with two tablespoonsful of sugar; when hot pour over two tablespoonsful of gelatin which has been softened in a tablespoonful of cold water. Add a pint of ginger ale. Mold and cool on ice until ready to serve.

Pump and Peppers.—Take the tops from six green peppers; remove the seeds and soak over night in strong brine. Fill the shells after draining with one-half cupful each of minced meat and bread crumbs and one cupful of cooked peas. Season with onion juice, a bit of peanut butter, salt, pepper, thick cream to make moist enough to serve well. Bake until the peppers are tender. Serve hot.

Waistline, Longer Skirts Presented

Prominent Paris Designer Offers Some Interesting Models.

When a dress authority announces a radical innovation, the always fascinating and usually perplexing subject of fashions becomes a matter of the moment. Long after a standard is accepted its vogue continues. Once it becomes the mode, women of fashion keep to it tenaciously. Anything revolutionary in dress is slow in coming, and ordinarily passes quite as slowly.

Among the smartly dressed women at today no one seems to recall just when the waistline widened from a small steel-bound circle to a wider one of ease, or when the belt dropped from its normal point to one almost out of sight, says a fashion writer in the New York Times. But these two things changed the entire style of costumes a few seasons ago and wiped out centuries of prejudice and convention. It required something of the crusader's spirit to abolish the rigid lines and formality that stays, bands and crinolines gave to the fashionable figure. But somehow, in the sweep toward more wholesome ways, this came about. The easy bodice that shows no curve between neck and hipline, the collar that leaves breathing room and the skirt that clears the ground expressed style in terms of comfort. They appeared to have come to stay. But that is not the way of fashion, and modern dress lacks the conservatism of highland kilts.

We have always the thrill of expectancy and the conspicuously smart is the one who is first to swing the trend in an opposite direction.

To Restore Waistline. Jean Patou, who has succeeded in establishing a sympathetic sense of American taste in dress, has decided, it is said, to restore the waistline. Just what part he took in its obliteration, a while ago, no one seems to recall. But lately he has presented some interesting examples in which a woman's waist is charmingly and becomingly indicated just where it belongs. How this is to be accomplished without bringing back the trappings that form artificial curves is not clear, but that is one of the privileged secrets of a designer's art. There are historic precedents for his guidance.

In several models of one sort and another, usually evening dress, or the positive opposite, such as tailored costumes, there have been shown the possibilities of a normal belt line, and Jean Patou has declared for it, his master hand may safely be trusted. To this creator is also credited a lengthening of the skirt.

Such revision of sentiment followed the introduction of the knee-length skirt a few seasons ago that little by little hems were dropped, and some of the leading couturiers made their smartest models with skirts that touched the floor. Quite unaccountably the advance styles from most of the representative houses this spring returned to the extremely short skirt, so short, in fact, that the more exclusive clientele rebelled. So Patou's some other heavy suiting was combined with finer materials, a rather weighty composition. It did not "go" for just that reason. With the introduction of lightweight, soft materials in a season that is madly, intensely, almost wholly silk, the ensemble has become a compelling idea.

The year's first ensemble was built of a frock in some soft fabric—silk, crepe, voile, chiffon—with a wrap lined with the dress material. The result was practical and unusually charming. It gave one a complete costume, and the coat or cape was a comfortable accessory. The idea has been developed in countless ways and in as many materials as the season offers.

Women and their dressmakers have gone ensemble mad, and everything possible in the changing phases of styles has been translated into an ensemble. There is the ensemble for the street, for afternoon and for daytime dress for every occasion. These run the gamut of new ideas in materials and novelty of composition.

The most usual ensemble of service value is accomplished with a printed crepe for the frock, a three-quarter or seven-eighth length coat of plain goods lined with the figured crepe to match the dress. With the great variety of new patterns brought out by leading manufacturers the possible variants in this type of outfit are almost without limit. The coat is nearly always made of satin, of silk poplin or of the wide-wale bengaline. Many uncommon and delightful color combinations are shown.

This is a year of soft fabrics, which have so completely captivated the fashionable world that heavier materials are eclipsed, and nothing is too sheer or fragile to build an ensemble.

In a unique model from a prominent French house the usual order is reversed, and a coat of flat crepe, of which the frock is made, is lined with kaisha, for warmth. In another engaging model, the crepe de chine wrap matching the dress is lined with velvet. The quintessence of grace and elegance is expressed in an afternoon ensemble of an indestructible voile, the predominating novelty of the season. This voile in a floral pattern of several beautiful colors on a black ground is made after a softly draped, rather simple mode.

New Materials Introduced.

Again Worth scores in some ensembles of distinction in which he introduces delicate fabrics combined with heavier silks, and sometimes with two materials of the same weight, one figured, the other plain. Drecoll, too, has done some beautiful ensembles for the early season, and some afternoon costumes of this type have come from the ateliers of Moynieux and Goupy. The idea has taken so well this side of the water that every modiste and dressmaker is doing ensembles of any and every sort of goods.

The number of new materials introduced in the ensembles is particularly interesting, for they illustrate also the latest fancies in color. Silk alpaca is much liked and is shown in lovely shades of beige, gray and in several greens. This material in emerald green is made into a simple straight-line frock with a coat of the same shade lined with lighter green crepe de chine. Chanel, who creates this smart, refreshing ensemble for afternoon, has done some strikingly original things in combining plain materials of pleasantly harmonizing colors.

Some of the best Paris designers are using much lace, all of the novelty all-overs in beige and ecru, and a great deal of chintilly, combining it with the crepes and voiles for afternoon ensembles suitable for warmer months. An indestructible voile in rose beige with softly tinted floral design is made into a charming afternoon gown after a rather "drowsy" model, and with this is a long, straight, loose coat of beige lace, lined with the voile, with subtle artistic effect.

PERKINS GIRL HEARS HERSELF DENOUNCED

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, June 9.—Seventeen year old Dorothy Perkins, on trial for the murder of Thomas Templeton of Jersey City, her suitor, heard herself denounced in general sessions today by James E. McDonald, assistant district attorney. The prosecutor branded the killing of Templeton as a "brutal crime."

The defense's contention is that the shooting was accidental. There has been conflicting testimony as to the manner in which the revolver was discharged while Dorothy was wrestling with her father on a stair landing in their home last February 14, after a birthday party.

Dorothy was cleared and released after a night of slumber when she came into court this morning.

The jury, which is hearing the case, is composed entirely of married men.

PAROLE BOARD PROBES CHARGES AGAINST BRINDLE

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Ossining, N. Y., June 9.—The state parole board began its inquiry today into charges preferred by Charles Johnson, Jr., president of Local 1465 Dock and Pier Carpenters' Union against Robert P. Brindell, former building trades union leader in New York.

Brindell was paroled from Sing Sing last December on his promise to refrain from union activities. It is in the board's power to recommit him for six years.

Johnson testified that two weeks after his release, Brindell asserted that parole meant nothing to him and that "there's money to be made" out of the unions.

Large Automotive Freight Business Reported at Mid-West Conference.

Two million, six hundred thirty-one thousand, six hundred ninety carloads of freight were contributed to the railroad business by the automobile industry during 1924, according to a statement by James S. Marvin, assistant general manager of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, issued at the Mid-West Motor Transport Conference held recently in Chicago. This conference of rail, electric and motor executives was held to discuss means of cooperation, and how transportation may be more efficiently handled. The table of freight carloads of products used in the motor transportation business is as follows:

1924 Freight Carloads	1924 Freight Carloads
Commodity	Commodity
Motor vehicles 740,000	Paint and varnish 1175
Tires 50,000	Plate glass 1200
Gasoline and lubricating oil 692,000	Leather, finished whips 300
Crude petroleum 55,000	Leather, raw and green hides 200
Crude rubber 12,157	Upholstery cloth 1,600
Iron and steel 72,750	Copper 2,500
Coal 72,900	Lead, the picked and shot 2,500
Lumber 64,000	Tire, side curbs and body material, and asbestos 1,600
Cement for roads 151,345	Brake lining 1,600
Asphalt for roads 33,225
Clay, gravel, sand and stones for roads 650,000	Total 2,631,690

NOTE: No attempt has been made to estimate the number of freight carloads resulting from shipments of following items: Road building machinery, materials and equipment used in automobile factory and branch construction and maintenance services, coal for making electricity and gas, fuel oil, iron for livestock, iron ore and other ores, carried, and gasoline, and extensive use of trucks and express shipments of accessories and repair parts. There is also the tremendous freight and passenger business incidental to the increase in population in the automobile and parts manufacturing centers.

High School Athletic Field

Fund Which Amounts to Five Hundred Dollars, Profits of "The Campus," is a Starter For a K. H. S. Athletic Field.

That a long cherished hope of those interested in athletics at the local high school may yet be realized is indicated in an announcement by the executive committee of the Kingston High School Alumni Association to the effect that a trust fund has been created which they hope will act as a starter for raising sufficient funds to develop an athletic field for Kingston High School.

The fund, which now amounts to over five hundred fifty dollars, is, for the most part, the profits made on "The Campus," the monthly magazine issued under the direction of the Alumni Association during the school year 1922-23. The balance is from the treasury of the association. The money is now deposited at interest, where it will be kept until such a time when supplementary funds may bring the total up to an amount sufficient to enable the proper authorities to start development of the long hoped for athletic field.

Standing alone, this amount could do but little toward bringing about the desired object; but the committee feels that once a start is made, there is hope that other funds will follow to complete this work.

"The Campus," as was stated, was a monthly magazine, edited by a group of alumni interested in athletics at their old Alma Mater. The original thought of the editors was to provide a coach for the athletic teams, but this plan had to be abandoned. After considering various ways in which the money might be used, it was decided that this was the method for making it most beneficial to both the high school and city, as the result, when realized, will be both valuable and lasting. While this decision was reached some time ago, announcement has been delayed because of the difficulty in checking up the business end of the magazine, a work which was hindered by the inability of the workers to get together on the proposition because of absence from the city of those who are now away at school, and business duties of those in the city.

To alleviate the fear that the money might be expended in an unwise manner or before the proper time arrives, the committee has arranged to have the money in care of a trustee. On request of the committee, Dr. Myron J. Michael, superintendent of schools, has consented to act in that capacity.

An athletic field suitable for outdoor amateur athletics, and particularly high school athletics, has been a long felt want in this city. Many prominent Kingstonians who find time to interest themselves in the youth of the city have long advocated the development of such a field, but the work has not yet gotten beyond the stage of approval and endorsement of the idea. In creating the fund it was the sincere hope of the alumni executive committee that now that something has been done toward raising the money, effective action will be taken by others interested in the project.

No Competition For Exporters

In America As Far As Germany Is Concerned Says American Merchant—All Willing To Carry Out Dawes Plan.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
 Berlin, June 9.—"With the high prices now prevailing in many lines of business in Germany, American exporters need have no fear of German competition," said Louis E. Kirstein, philanthropist and merchant of Boston, Mass., and Rochester, N. Y.

Mr. Kirstein said there seemed to be a wave of returning confidence among German business men "notwithstanding von Hindenburg's election."

"The solid people of Germany with whom I came in contact, many of whom voted for Hindenburg, would not for a single moment dream of returning to a monarchy," Kirstein said. "They realize that the economic development requires international confidence in Germany, and that this can be done only if the republic continues."

"Everybody accepts the Dawes plan and seems willing to do what they can to carry it out. There is, however, considerable complaint over the high taxation which keeps the cost of living extremely high. Certainly it is above the world price level."

"I learn that the turnover tax in some businesses is forty-five per cent of the finished article. There is a question if high taxes will not have the ultimate effect of reducing German production. This would in turn reduce Germany's capacity to pay under the Dawes plan."

"From my observation, the German government is actually collecting taxes and collecting them efficiently. One of the men in our Berlin organization told me he pays twenty-eight per cent of his gross income to the German government and he is not a German citizen."

"Business men with whom I talked clearly realize that Germany must find some way of meeting her obligations. These men are very keen to get a strong, stable government which will enable them to make long time plans for the future. They wish to feel sure of social and political stability which they consider a necessary for the carrying out of big business."

Kitten Cheers Boy Prisoner

By Telegram to The Freeman.
 Cambridge, Mass., June 9.—Deserted by relatives and friends, Johnny Veres, eight years old, Massachusetts youngest prisoner, has "adopted" a jail kitten for his only playmate.

Johnny is held at East Cambridge jail for trial on charges of killing Vivian Hussen, 19 months old baby, stoned to death and drowned in Merrimack river, at Lowell.

Since his incarceration the little prisoner has been lonely. No gifts or words of affection have come from his Lowell home.

Treated as a child and kept apart from other prisoners, the strange little jail figure was very lonesome until the tiny kitten came into his life. Since that time the boy and the kitten have been constant companions.

Johnny's only visitors have been two women, strangers, who heard of his case and brought him toys. The toys and the kitten have been a delight to Johnny.

The jail yard near the hospital is Johnny's exclusive playground and he is not allowed to mix with other prisoners.

"We try to let him live as much as possible as a normal child," said Sheriff Baker. "We feel that we have no right to judge him or blame him. He seems contented and happy since he found the jail kitten. He does what he is asked and makes no trouble."

U. S. S. V-3 Slides Into Atlantic

Sister Ship of Largest Submersibles Built Here is Launched at Portsmouth Navy Yard — Principal Characteristics.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
 Portsmouth, N. H., June 9.—Another American super-submarine slid into the Atlantic today.

Fleet submarine V-3, a sister ship to the U. S. S. V-1 and U. S. S. V-2, the largest submersibles built in this country was launched at Portsmouth Navy yard.

Third of the largest sea going type of fleet submarines, of which nine were authorized by congress in 1916, the V-3 is designed primarily to accompany the fleet at sea in any weather and to maintain any speed of which the fleet is capable. The following are its principal characteristics:

Length over all—341 feet, six inches.

Breadth—maximum, 27 feet, 6 1/2 inches.

Displacement—surface, 2167 tons. Speed—surface, 21 knots, submerged, nine knots.

Mrs. Louis R. DeSteiguer, wife of Rear Admiral Louis R. DeSteiguer, commandant of the first naval district, christened the V-3.

The keel of the V-3 was laid November 16, 1921, but work on the vessel was practically suspended during the years 1922-23, owing to lack of funds. It is expected that the V-3 will leave the local yard for builders' trials and will be commissioned in the early spring of next year.

The V-1, sister ship of the V-2, has just returned from a cruise of four and one-half months during which time she visited ports in South America and the West Indies.

The V-2 is propelled by four engines, total maximum horse power of which is 4,500.

Armament of the V-3 consists of six twenty-one inch torpedo tubes.

American Melting Pot Solves Riddle, Says Coolidge

This Nation Marked for Preeminent Destiny Because It Has Evolved From Confusion of Tongues and Conflict of Traditions, a New Spiritual Union.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

State Fair Grounds Minneapolis-St. Paul, Minn., June 9.—President Coolidge, who came into the great wheat belt of the northwest to join in the centennial celebration of the first organized movement of the Norwegian to the New World, pointed to the American melting pot as the true answer to the "riddle of Babel" and called upon the rest of the world to profit by the American example of assimilation and unity, in an address here yesterday afternoon.

Massey before the president as he spoke were packed thousands of citizens but one generation removed from those daring Norsemen who just one hundred years ago sailed into New York harbor and blazed a trail into the vast region west of the Mississippi and north of the Missouri.

It was to them, and to other more recently adopted sons from other sections of the Old World—to their homely virtues and their staunch allegiance—that the president attributed the rise of the United States to the greatest of powers. In their hands he placed the future of the nation, and he pleaded that other peoples of the world follow them to a realization that only through fraternity and cooperation can come universal unity, peace and prosperity.

"Out of the confusion of tongues, the conflict of traditions, the variations of historical setting, the vast differences in talents and tastes," he said, "there has been evolved a spiritual union accompanied by a range of capacity and genius which marks this nation for a pre-eminent destiny."

"If fraternity and cooperation are possible on the scale of this continent among people so widely diverse, why not on the scale of the world? It is not a new thought, but it is a profoundly engaging one. I firmly believe it is more than a chimera. I feel it is possible of realization. I am convinced that our national story might somewhat help to guide mankind toward such a goal."

True attainment of this goal of world harmony and peace, Mr. Coolidge observed, lies along a path emanating from "the family altar." From there, he said, springs those truly American institutions of religious liberty, of educational and economic opportunity, of constitutional rights, of the integrity of the law—"the most precious possessions of the human race."

"These do not emanate from the government. Their abiding place is with the people. They come from the consecration of the father, the love of the mother and the devotion of the children. They are the product of that honest, earnest and tireless effort that goes into the rearing of the family altar and the making of the home."

As befitting the occasion, the president devoted himself largely to the exploits of the sons of Thor and Odin. He traced their conquest of the American continent from the time Lief, the son of Erik, 500 years before Columbus landed on American soil, through the first organized expedition of 1825 and the settlement of the northwest into the present era of success and prosperity.

"These Norsemen, one of whose anniversaries we are celebrating today," he said, "have from their first appearance on the margin of history been the children of freedom. Their glory is all about you, their living and their mighty dead. They have given great soldiers, statesmen, scientists, educators and men of business to the upbuilding of their adopted country. To their adaptability the nation owes much for its success in the enormous progress of assimilation and spiritual unification that has made our nation what it is and our people what they are."

"It is a good thing that anniversaries such as this are so widely commemorated. The next few years will be filled with a continuing succession of similar occasions. I wish that every one of them might be so impressively celebrated that all Americans would be moved to study the history each one represents. I can think of no effort that would produce so much inspiration to high and intelligent patriotism. Occasions of this nature bring to our attention whole regions of the past that would otherwise remain unexplored, tend to be forgotten even by scholars, and pass entirely from the public mind. These incentives to special examination of particular historical phases teach us better to understand our country and our countrymen. Anyone who will study the institutions and people of America will come more and more to admire them."

"One reason that moved me to accept the cordial invitations to come here today was the hope of directing some measure of national attention to the absorbingly interesting subject of the social background of our country. The making of such a country is not to be told in any mere catalog of dates, battles, political evolutions, and partisan controversies. Back of all these, which are too often the chief material of history, lies the human story of the unknown millions of plain people whose names are strangers to public place and fame. Their lives have been replete with quiet, unpretentious, modest but some the less heroic virtues."

"Although this movement if people originated in Norway, in its essence and its meaning it is peculiarly American. It has nothing about it of class or caste. It has no tinge of aristocracy. It was not produced through the leadership of some great figure. It is represented almost entirely by that stalwart strain who make the final decisions in this world, which we designate the common people. It has about it the strength of the home and the fire-side; the family ties of the father and the mother, the children and the kindred. It has all been carried on very close to the soil. It has all been extremely human. When I consider the marvelous results it has accomplished I can not but believe that it was inspired by a Higher Power. Here is something vital, firm, and abiding, which I can only describe as a great reality.

"An enormous power has come to you, but you are charmed with equally enormous responsibilities. Those responsibilities you have never failed to meet, that power you have never failed to sanctify. Therein lies the sole title to all the glory you have achieved in the past and therein will lie the sole title to all the glory that you will achieve in the future. Believing that there resides in an enlightened people an all-compelling force for righteousness, I have every faith that through the vigorous performance of your duties you will add new luster to your glory in the days to come."

"Our America with all that it represents of hope in the world is now and will be what you make it. Its institutions of religious liberty, of educational and economic opportunity, of constitutional rights, of the integrity of the law, are the most precious possessions of the human race. These do not emanate from the government. Their abiding place is with the people. They come from the consecration of the father, the love of the mother, and the devotion of the children. They are the product of that honest, earnest, and tireless effort that goes into the rearing of the family altar and the making of the home."

As befitting the occasion, the president devoted himself largely to the exploits of the sons of Thor and Odin. He traced their conquest of the American continent from the time Lief, the son of Erik, 500 years before Columbus landed on American soil, through the first organized expedition of 1825 and the settlement of the northwest into the present era of success and prosperity.

How They Farmed Back in 1844

In the 1844 report of the New York State Agricultural Society it was suggested that to properly stock a 100-acre farm one should have 3 horses, one yoke of oxen, 8 milch cows, 10 steers, 20 pigs, 150 sheep and a flock of poultry. The total value of the stock at prices prevailing then was $319. For machinery the same report suggested a revolving hay rake, 2 grain cradles, a straw cutter, a root slicer, an ox-cart and a wheelbarrow, the total value of which was $437. The present secretary of the society, Charles H. Baldwin, cites from previous records these and other interesting facts in an article for the current issue of the American Agriculturist.

A farm of this size would require for eight months of the year the labor of two men and a boy in addition to the owner himself. During the winter only one man was necessary, but during hay and harvest time two additional hands were needed. All worked twelve hours a day. If the men boarded themselves they received $15 a month in summer and $12 in winter, but if boarded, which often meant a money wage of $3 to $10 per month.

Nowadays, farm machinery is doing much formerly done by hand, and the wages for farm hands are $40 a month, besides a home to live in, fuel, milk, potatoes, or whatever the arrangement is. A good tubular plow tilled now will do $100 to $125—as much as an old cow in 1844—but one produces as much milk probably as the cow did then. The present average cost of $21.44 for raising an acre of corn is in strong contrast to the $1.64 quoted by S. H. Knapp of Rockport, N. Y., in 1844 for first premium for Indian corn.

Our Growing Population.
The following births have been reported to the board of health:
Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Sargent, 111 Gage street, a daughter, Margaret May.
Mr. and Mrs. Eugene S. Sargent, 102 Sargent street, a son, Clarence Frank.

Cousin Clem tells the world!

"My wife calls herself a 'Golf Widow' because I spend so much time on the links. But she can't complain about my not showering her with every comfort. And she admits it too! Just the other day she told me how glad she was I put in a Thatcher Hot Water Boiler last winter. She said it was the most cheerful thing about the house. Even-tempered heat, every room just right, and no coaxing."

THE triangular revolving grates of the Thatcher Round Boiler crush and dispose of clinkers. A bar holds the grates in place, and this is easily removed to replace a grate. The ash pit is unusually high, giving lots of space for removing ashes, and lessening the possibility of burning out grates.

Social Activities of Year.

The following is a complete report of the social committee as given by Mrs. Silas LeFevre, chairman:
When our recent asked me, as chairman, to give a resume of the work of the social committee, it recalled to my mind the remark of my predecessor when I asked her concerning the work connected with the committee. "Oh," she replied, "there is not much to do. I only had to select seven cakes." I am afraid this year the members will think that I have stretched those seven cakes to the proverbial activity times seven.
The first social function of Wiltwyck Chapter was on September 17, Constitution Day, when we had the pleasure of welcoming the state his### torian, Mrs. Alton B. Parker. Each

member was privileged to invite a guest. Consequently the Chapter House was filled to overflowing. Ice and cake were served to over 150 people. Catering to that number of guests brought home most forcibly to us the inadequacy of our kitchen equipment. So following the natural order of cause and effect, a card party was agreed upon as a means of supplying our deficiencies in that line. So on October 23, our members and guests enjoyed a Halloween party in the Chapter House. All decorations and appointments were in the time-honored colors of that festive holiday. The result was very gratifying, the net clearance being $100, which was placed in the hands of the treasurer of the Old Stone House Fund. With this we have purchased articles necessary in entertaining, sherberts, plates, extra cups and saucers, coffee and tea pots, sugar and cream, linen, towels, etc. The total amount expended was $58.11, leaving a balance of $11.89 which sum is to be kept intact for any further necessities for the kitchen. That my report may not be at variance with that of Mrs. Roosa, let me add that a bill of $19 came on June 1, too late to be included in her statement. On November 7 the Chapter had as its guest the state regent, Mrs. Charles White Nash. At the close of the afternoon session, sandwiches and coffee were served. Apropos of the visit of Mrs. Nash, the sandwiches remaining were disposed of to such advantage that our expenses were defrayed. This might be termed either light finance juggling or able financing. February 22, Washington's Birthday, the pageant "Kenmore" was given. At the close of this charming replica of Washington's home life, the members and guests were invited to the dining room where a charming tea table was presided over by the mother and godmother of Washington, being Mrs. Lewis and Mrs. Basten, respectively.

The piece de resistance was a huge birthday cake ornamented with frosting and the dates 1732-1925 in red. The cake was presented to the Chapter by one of its members, Mrs. Jerome Snyder of Wawarsing. In addition to this, delicious Lafayette ginger bread was served. This was made by members of the Chapter from a recipe of Washington's mother who made it for Lafayette, hence the name. This was under the Program and Social Committee and was by far the most pretentious social affair of the year.

April 25 was the date of our last social effort. At a previous meeting it was decided to pay Mrs. Hill $100 a year, and so on this date a card party was given. Mrs. Roosa and myself, co-chairmen, towards raising that amount and $55 was cleared. During the games punch was served. In closing I wish to thank the members for their cooperation and generous giving toward our various needs.

WHEN YOUR FEET

FILL YOUR SHOES

Thousands of people are home from work in absolute misery due to tired, aching, puffy feet—thousands of them do not know that this suffering can be relieved in a few minutes and that it can be avoided altogether.

Carter's Liniment was worked out for this very purpose. It is made to soothe corns and callouses so they can be scraped right off—it penetrates to the liniments and helps them pull the weakened arches back into their natural position—it stimulates absorption so that the excess water which causes puffiness is taken away by the blood. When these three conditions are relieved your feet are a full size smaller and the pain is gone.

When you think of liniment ask for Carter's. "It's different." Buy it at any drug store, or sample free.

Will Discuss Highway Marking

Highway officials of New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Maryland and Delaware will meet in New York City on June 15 to designate the important interstate roads in these states which will be uniformly marked as United States highways. The meeting is the outcome of the initial conference of the Joint Board on Interstate Highways composed of State and Federal highway officials which was held in Washington April 20 and 21. Regional meetings have been held in San Francisco, Kansas City, Chicago and Atlanta and the New York meeting will be followed by a meeting in Boston for the purpose of selecting the important interstate roads which, after coordination as between the various sections, will be known as United States highways. The selected routes will be designated by number and marked uniformly in all states with a standard marker. As a basis for the selection of the routes, each state highway department will present at the meeting a map showing the routes within the state which, in the opinion of the department, should be selected. The proposal to designate important interstate roads and mark them uniformly was initiated by the American Association of State highway officials at the annual meeting of the association in San Francisco in November, 1924, when the secretary of agriculture was asked to name a joint board to consider the matter. There has been a feeling among highway officials for some time that a remedy should be found for the present confused situation in respect to interstate roads. Information was presented at the recent meeting of the Joint Board in Washington showing that overlapping of named routes is common. There are few of such routes that are not coincident in part with other routes. One well known route 1,500 miles long overlaps other routes for 70 per cent of its length. Ten different routes are involved in this overlapping and in places two or three of them coincide for many miles. At the regional meetings tentative proposals with respect to the form and color of warning and directional signs for the interstate roads will be presented to the State highway officials for consideration. It has been tentatively decided to adopt a standard round sign for marking all railroad crossings and an octagonal sign to indicate danger or stop, a diamond shaped sign for caution or slow, a square sign to indicate "look" or attention, and a rectangular shape for directional or informational signs. Recommendations with regard to the standardization of highway signs have been made recently by a number of national organizations, including the American Association of State highway officials, the Hoover Street and Highway Safety Conference, the sectional committee on color code for Highway signs of the American Engineering Standards Committee, the National Safety Council, the U. S. Bureau of Standards, the National Research Council and the American Automobile Association. As a result of the work of the Joint Board on Interstate highways in cooperation with the State highway departments it is anticipated that a practical scheme, taking into account all such recommendations, will be evolved in the near future, and applied, at least, to the designated important interstate highways.

I Held Her Hand.

I held her hand one night in June
Beneath a silvered lover's moon,
Upon the wave-washed sand,
Her eyes like diamonds looked in mine.
My heart was filled with love divine,
The while I held her hand.
I held her hand; I spoke the word
That only waves and breezes heard.
And clouds of fleecy lace;
Out there upon the beach's sand
I stole a kiss, and held her hand—
Or she's have slapped my face.

Post Office Will Revise Lists

Furnishes Clerks to Revise Mailing Lists Because So Many Business Men Use Lists That Send Mail to Dead Letter Office.

Offenses against good mailing practices are not confined entirely to the average man who mails only his yearly quota of 112 letters. Postmaster General New declared today in connection with his better mailing campaign.

The business man, who is naturally expected to take every precaution in the interest of intelligent communication with his clients or customers, often falls woefully short in providing adequate safeguards for the efficient delivery of his mail.

It is true that comparatively few business letters reach the Dead Letter Office because the business man learned long ago to have his return address printed on his envelopes. It only for its accruing advertising value.

There are firms, however, that purposely leave off return cards when sending out circulars and advertising matter. They seek this method of arousing curious recipients to examine letters which otherwise might be consigned unopened to the waste basket.

But "Nixies"—meaning letters requiring directory service before delivery can be effected—are comprised largely of business letters, and this service costs the Post Office nearly two million dollars yearly.

The practice of buying sales lists—usually antiquated ones—for advertising soliciting through the mails is especially prolific of nixies. The owners of such lists seldom attempt to keep them current although the Post Office will furnish clerks to revise such lists at the nominal charge of 65 cents an hour.

Advertisers in newspapers, magazines and elsewhere often fail to specify their own street address. Answers, therefore, particularly where the advertiser is located in one of the larger cities, just as frequently are returned to the senders.

"That's a penny-wise and pound-foolish policy," Mr. New said. "The return of one letter marked 'Not Found' will do the advertiser more harm in the town from which it came than he can repair with many thousand dollars worth of advertising."

"The person to whom it is returned will give him plenty of advertising, but it will be of the wrong kind."

Almost as foolish is the firm—and there are many of them—which fails to carry its complete address, including street number, city and state, on its letter heads and other stationery, particularly, order blanks.

Delaware County Legion Banquet

Delaware County Posts Will Hold Annual Banquet at Churchill Hall Hotel on June 16.

Stamford-in-the-Catskills, June 9.—Tuesday, June 16, will prove to be a most auspicious date in the history of Stamford-in-the-Catskills, for on this date Churchill Hall, the largest hotel in western Catskills, formally opens another summer season and as the crowning feature of opening date Delaware County American Legion and Auxiliary will hold their annual banquet at this famous hostelry.

For the past six weeks H. H. Mase, who is managing director of Churchill Hall and Remere Club Hotel, and William J. Lowe, who is assistant manager of these two hotels, have been busily engaged with a large corps of workers preparing for this official summer opening day. Lawns have been trimmed, flower plots have been planted, painters, wall paper hangers, electricians and plumbers have been making inspections and bringing right up to the point of perfection every detail that came under their hand.

This splendid hotel with its reputation of having pleased thousands of guests in years gone by is now in gala dress to delight the visitors who will start the influx of summer vacationists upon its opening day. It was befitting indeed that the county committee should select this hotel with its reputation for serving delicious meals as their banquet place for 1925. Snyder's orchestra has been engaged for the dance which will immediately follow the banquet.

Arthur W. North, who is so well known for his pleasant speech making ability, will act as toastmaster and will have the pleasure of introducing to the two hundred or more guests at the banquet such notable speakers as Senator Seabury C. Mastick, of Westchester county; Albert L. Ward, first vice-state commander; the Hon. Harold S. Tolley, congressman; the Hon. A. J. McNaught, county judge, and Mrs. Katherine Garrison, state president of the Garrison.

This banquet will begin promptly at 7 p. m. and is open to the public. A general invitation is being issued to all of the counties in the Catskills to have at least one representative and as many more as desire to come will receive an enthusiastic welcome. E. H. Myers, one of the most active workers in the American Legion of Stamford, is chairman of the ticket committee, and reports that unusual interest is being shown in this occasion.

Kingston High School Notes

Saturday afternoon, Johnnie Scanlon, the K. H. S. miler, cut his previous record by ten seconds, at the Cornell University interscholastic track meet, when he covered the four laps in four minutes and forty-five seconds. The mile race as it was run at Ithaca Saturday, was a hard-fought contest. The winning time was four minutes and forty-three seconds. The first ten men finished in close order. Scanlon finishing sixth was only two seconds behind the winner. Scanlon is only a junior in the local high school, so he will be running for K. H. S. again next year.

Regents Next Week.
Next week the regular New York state regents examinations will be held throughout this state. The teachers of the local high school have been reviewing for two weeks already, putting on the finishing touches in preparation for this final test.

Friday a Busy Day.
Friday is Senior Day at the local high school. This is an old custom in the high school. The seniors of the school have charge of the last assembly of the year on this morning. The assembly is presided over by the president of the graduating class. A short program, consisting of singing, and recitations is given by the members of the graduating class. On Friday afternoon the final report cards for this school year will be issued. Also on Friday afternoon the Maroon, the K. H. S. year book will be on sale. This book is published by the senior class of the high school. This year's Maroon promises to be one of the best in the history of the school. On Friday evening eight big acts of vaudeville will be presented in the auditorium of the K. H. S. Athletic Association. After a successful year in the line of athletics in K. H. S. the athletic association, which finances all these activities, finds itself in debt. With the cooperation of the student body of the school this association in an attempt to clear up all these debts is putting on eight acts of good vaudeville in hopes that the people of Kingston will stand back of them and attend the show Friday evening. If the A. A. does not clear itself of these debts it is doubtful if she will be able to put any teams on the field to represent her next year. The price of admission will be fifty cents, cheaper than any other show in town. When the show is over dancing will be enjoyed, by all present, in the gymnasium of the school.

Samuel G. Haskell, of Georgetown, Maine, was once a member of the crew of the Constitution, not when she was making her fighting reputation, but when she made her last voyage in 1878. She was sent to Havre, France, when the expedition at Paris was on, and remained there several months; the return trip was the last she ever made, and was done in 45 days from Havre to New York. Mr. Haskell was present when the celebration of the Constitution's 100th anniversary took place.

American Legion Ridding County State Convention Of Woodchucks

Navy Department to Anchor Warships in North River—While it is in Session and Take Part in Big Military Parade.

According to advices received by the committee in charge of the forthcoming New York State Convention of the American Legion, to be held in New York city September 10, 11 and 12, the United States Navy will be represented during the sessions by an imposing display of men of war in the North River. It is announced by the committee that the Navy representation will include the flagship of Vice Admiral J. S. McKean, U. S. N., the battleship Wyoming, the light cruiser Milwaukee and a division of six destroyers. There is also a possibility of the presence in the vicinity of the city, though not anchored with the fleet, of two more of the Navy's newest light cruisers. These ships will be open to visitors and their men will participate in the big military parade.

The sessions of the convention will be held in the Seventy-First Regiment Armory, Park avenue and thirty-fourth street, and the Hotel Pennsylvania has been designated as official headquarters. State Commander S. E. Aronowitz, who has just completed a tour of the state, says that he confidently expects an attendance of over 50,000 delegates and visitors to New York during the convention. The housing committee is now at work making arrangements for hotel accommodations. In addition to these visitors, there will be present National Commander James A. D. Ryan and men prominent in national civic and official positions. It is expected that Vice President Dawes will represent the administration. The parade is scheduled for Friday afternoon and for this the committee of which Major General Charles W. Berry is chairman reports plans for the largest and most representative turnout of military organizations and former service men, since war time days. Fifth avenue is to have all of the martial trappings which gave color to the thoroughfare during the spectacular days of returning troops from overseas.

Every function of the Legion in Greater New York is energetically planning the entertainment of the guests who having met last year in the Thousand Islands, will be met in New York with the slogan "All on one isle and all of that isle yours." There is to be a monster clam bake, probably a grand ball, a night at Coney Island and river and sea trips.

During the Legion convention, sessions of the Auxiliaries of the Department of New York will also take place. Mrs. A. M. Bell of Sea Cliff is chairman of the committee of arrangements and Mrs. Louise Williams of Tuckahoe, vice chairman. The Forty and Eight will hold its annual gathering and stage one of its famous parades.

Today We Celebrate

LAST APPEARANCE OF JACK DEMPSEY (THE "NONPAREIL").
John L. Sullivan and Jack Dempsey boxed a three round exhibition given in New York thirty years ago yesterday, at a farewell exhibition given in Madison Square Garden in honor of Dempsey. The present generation may raise an eyebrow on reading this and ask "How can that be? Surely the world's champ isn't as old as all that." Well, as a matter of fact, he is not—nor did he look it when he sat down to dinner in Paris in May, with Carpenter, his bride, Estelle Taylor, Nazimova and a galaxy of those prominent in the movie and sporting world. But Dempsey—that name "Jack Dempsey" was made famous and a desirable "Non" for all future champs, by another J. D.—the one alluded to in the bout described herein.

When the "Nonpareil" stepped into the ring, some of the army of friends and admirers were afflicted with a sudden mistiness about the eyes—for the once superlative boxer was already far gone with tuberculosis and was reduced to skin and bones, weighing only 135 pounds. Dempsey left immediately after the exhibition for Oregon, where he vainly hoped to win back his health, but he survived only a few months. The great Irishman was one of the sanest, squarest men that the ring has ever had, and no other boxer has ever gained so large a personal following of devoted, affectionate friends. This feeling was so strong that when Fitzsimmons defeated Dempsey for the middleweight title, a feeling of deep resentment against Fitz sprang up, persisting for several years.

CASSIOPIA.
Was the daughter of Arabas, and wife of Cepheus, king of Ethiopia, to whom she bore Andromeda. She dared to compare her daughter's beauty to that of the Nereides, who brought Neptune for vengeance. The god complied by laying waste the dominions of Cepheus, by a deluge and a sea monster.

In astronomy Cassiopeia is a conspicuous constellation in the northern hemisphere.

EARLY NEWSPAPERS.
The first newspaper to be published in Brooklyn was issued 143 years ago today, and bore the long name of the Brooklyn Hall Super-Extra Gazette. The name of the Gazette was a favorite one with the publishers of early American newspapers and was applied to the first newspapers published in New York and Hartford, and to the pioneer papers in Philadelphia, Boston and other cities. The high sounding "Super-Extra" that was a part of the name of the Brooklyn journal had its parallel in the name of many 18th century journals, as viz: "The Boston Rehearsal," "The New York Gazette of Connecticut," New Jersey, Hudson River and Quebec Weekly Advertiser, the Massachusetts Spy, the Harrisburg Oracle of Lauphria, the Cincinnati Sentinel of the Northwestern Territory, the Liberty Hall and Cincinnati Mercury, the Indianapolis and Cincinnati Advertiser—these are but a few of the odd or lengthy names that appeared on the title pages of the early American newspapers.

Another Demonstration Wednesday Evening at Stone Ridge—Directions of Methods to be Employed.

A woodchuck eradication demonstration will be held at Fred Davis's fruit and poultry farm in Stone Ridge on Wednesday evening, June 10, at 7 o'clock, standard time. Farm Bureau Manager Wigsten will be present to demonstrate the calcium cyanide method for woodchuck control. Mr. Wigsten states recent demonstrations have proven the method one hundred per cent effective of properly applied. Authorities advise farmers to be cautious in using this material although little danger is involved if precautions recommended are followed.

The following directions for destroying woodchucks or ground hogs are recommended by the biological survey and New York State College of Agriculture and Ulster County Farm Bureau:

1. At the present time calcium cyanide is being most successfully used in killing woodchucks in their dens. Use according to the following directions:
1. Learn just what holes woodchucks are using by making a careful survey of the farm.
2. Place in each opening a tablespoonful (about 1 ounce) of Calcium cyanide granules, using a long handled spoon to place the granules far down in the burrow.
3. As soon as a hole has been treated, close the opening with a sod, or a flat stone and earth, preventing loose earth from falling into the hole.
4. A dead woodchuck results, but it is advisable to inspect the holes on the following day to repeat the treatment wherever a hole has been reopened.

Important.
Skunks use woodchuck holes, and since they are valuable as fur-bearers and for feeding on meadow mice and injurious insects, care should be taken to treat only holes in which woodchuck are known to be living.

Caution.
Calcium cyanide, on exposure to the air and moisture, gives off a very poisonous gas, therefore cans must be opened only out of doors and on dry calm days. Do not breathe the fumes nor get any cyanide in the mouth. Wash the hands after using it. Be sure all flakes go where it is intended—inside of the burrow. Store in safe place.

Antidote: Inhale ammonia; apply cold water to head and spine; give stimulant of one teaspoonful of aromatic spirits of ammonia; give artificial respiration.

Dollar Came Back
In 1878 a Confederate veteran named Doby left South Carolina for Tennessee with his family. Ill fortune went with them for a while, for their home burned down and members of the family became ill, so that when the only money in their possession was an ill-fated silver dollar they parted with it reluctantly. Mr. Doby goes on with the story: "Not a dollar has since fallen into my hands without my scrutinizing it to discover those initials. A few days ago a man called to me on the street and said, 'Here is the dollar I owe you.' As was my custom for 46 years, I looked for the initials, and to my great joy that dollar had the letters W. E. D. engraved on it."

Baseball in Argentina
Baseball has at last gained a place among Argentine sports, though as yet a small one. Two teams, composed of natives, have been organized, coached by Americans, one representing the Buenos Aires Y. M. C. A., the other the Gymnasium and Fencing club, the principal athletic club of Buenos Aires. Increasingly large numbers of spectators watch the games which they play with each other, with teams of American residents, and with one team of Japanese residents. They field and bat well, but have yet to develop pitchers able to fool their American or Japanese opponents often enough to win a game from them.

He'll Never Get In
William Milligan Sloane, the historian, is president of the American Academy of Arts and Letters, and in New York the other day a young novelist of the psycho-analytic or jazz school ridiculed the distinguished institution mercilessly. He said the French academy was no good, and the American academy was only an imitation of it.

When the jazz novelist got through Professor Sloane gave a good-natured laugh and said: "Our American academy is like death. People only joke about it when they know there's no danger of its coming their way."

Helium Used as Starter
Helium, the non-combustible gas used in filling the lighter-than-air craft, has found another use. It has always been impossible on the Los Angeles to carry enough compressed air to start the engines in starting. Experiments conducted at Lakehurst, the naval air station, have developed the fact that this gas can be used successfully in starting the big motors of the craft.

New Cathedral a National Shrine

Washington Cathedral, Although Only One-eighth Completed, Visited by 200,000 Pilgrims in One Year.

That Washington Cathedral, although only one-eighth completed, is becoming one of the nation's most popular shrines, is indicated by an announcement from the National Cathedral Foundation that nearly 200,000 pilgrims visited in the last twelve months the Bethlehem Chapel in the crypt where the tombs of President Woodrow Wilson and Admiral George Dewey are located.

By actual count of the vergers, the number of visitors entering the chapel from Easter Sunday, 1924, to Easter Sunday, 1925, was 189,425. This total does not include other thousands who attended the great open air services on Mount Saint Alban during the summer season or who inspected recent construction work, the historic trees planted in the bishop's house garden and other attractions within the Cathedral. Close of nearly seventy acres, without seeking admittance to the chapel. The monthly total of visitors reached its highest point during April of this year when 35,000 people passed through the Bethlehem Chapel and the curator's office which has been erected to offer hospitality to tourists from all over the United States and the world.

In comparison with the 200,000 visitors to the Gothic edifice slowly rising on the highest hill in the District of Columbia, the figures for the Corcoran Art Gallery for the last calendar year show 177,240 visitors. Within the last two years the Cathedral has come to rank in national interest with such familiar and well-beloved shrines as the Washington monument with its 250,000 visitors and Mount Vernon with more than 300,000 visitors in a year. Since the curator's office was opened last September, more than 150,000 people have visited the Cathedral. In this number were representatives of forty foreign countries, including India, Arabia, Iceland, Norway, Sweden, England, Japan, Czechoslovakia, Australia and Chile.

The visitors were informed that great progress in completing the Cathedral is scheduled to be made in the next five years. Many of them made subscriptions for blocks of time-stone to be placed in the Cathedral fabric as their personal contributions.

Got Idea in Dream

A "moving invention," making post-humous pictures shows in broad daylight is claimed by a young book-binder in Budapest, according to a dispatch from that city, the New York World says.
The inventor projects pictures not against a white screen but against a rapidly rotating disk covered with strips of dark green and dark blue paper which radiates from the center. The dispatch says the invention has been proved a complete success by experiment and is already patented. The inventor says the idea came to him in a dream and he is unable to explain it.

SEEK TREASURE OF ALEXANDER

Archaeologists Believe It Can Be Located.

A report sent from Baku says that search has been begun by the Azerbaijan Archaeological society for the treasure of Alexander the Great, which is believed to be buried near the village of Andrievka. It is rather a relief that the quest for buried treasure has been shifted to the neighborhood of Baku, and that it is the wealth of Alexander which is sought. Search for the buried treasure of Captain Kidd and that of the Louisiana-Mississippi state-patriot, Jean Lafitte, has been carried on so extensively that it is thought to give the treasure of Alexander a chance. So much also has been written of the buried treasures of the Incas and of gold in sunken galleons that it is diverting to hear from the region of the Caucasus mountains and the Caspian sea, in old Georgia, which is now the Azerbaijan republic.

Many unsatisfactory results have attended the search for buried treasure, and in the matter of finding the wealth of Alexander one should keep expectation and enthusiasm under control. It is believed that the third king of Macedon, in the thirty-three years of his active life between Pella and Babylon, may have accumulated wealth in his triumphal travels in Byzantium, Persia and other countries he might have gathered treasure. Whether he buried much of it, or any near the village of Andrievka is the question.

Treasure of Alexander the Great could be double treasure. The gold could be gold worth so much an ounce, at the gold coins, vases and amulets taken from kings, princesses and priests at Thebes and scores of other cities would be worth more than their weight in gold. Lovers of antiques, owners of things with imperial associations, lovers of things steeped in associations of war, plunder, conquest and assassination would bid against each other.

The dispatch says: "Although there are no precise historical data indicating the existence of such treasure, the archeologists were led to excavate by the statement of an 80-year-old resident of Andrievka, who says he owns an ancient map stolen from a Turkish sultan many years ago showing the spot where the treasure is buried. The old man's story of a stolen map has a reminiscent sound to persons who have been burnt by the buried treasure fever."

The dispatch also says that "It is an established historical fact that Alexander's troops mutilated at one point in the great empire builder's campaign against Persia—2,250 years ago—and local legend has it that he buried all his treasure somewhere on the Caspian littoral to prevent it falling into the hands of the mutineers. The trouble with many local legends of buried treasure is that they cover too much ground, and that it is hard to pin them down to any particular spot."

Vainly Search for Lost Cremona Varnish

Says the Encyclopedia Britannica, apocryphal violin varnish: "The varnish of the old Italian violins contributed the most important element of their superiority in tone to their modern copies." "Save the surface and you save all," carols the varnish vendor from the corner paint shop. This is as true concerning violins as villas, writes Otto Meyer.

Charles Roudé, the famous English novelist, who was also an authority on violins, did not give up the search for the lost Cremona varnish until the very end of his life, when he admitted, "I have not been able to discover the secret." And yet it was so secret in Stradivari's day except that each maker mixed and prepared his own varnish and had his particular and individual way of applying it to his instruments. But with the introduction of the quickly drying and more consistent spirit varnishes the violin-makers gradually lost their skill or their interest in the old-style product, which faded rapidly out of the picture; and with the end of the eighteenth century is gone for good.

As Hever remarks in one of his books: "Once it was generally known how copper could be hardened; how Damascus was panned; how the ancient gallies were rowed; how the old masters mixed their colors; how the pictures of the Medici were distilled; how amber varnish was made and how applied; and today nobody knows!"
Those of us who have been privileged to gaze upon the supreme combination of wood and varnish in the "Dolphin Strad," have seen one of the few perfect things on this most imperfect planet. The same kind, the "Dolphin," is an attempt to picture the undulating and shimmering loveliness of the great violin.

Financial and Commercial

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, June 9.—The trend of the stock market today was in the direction of lower prices. A few stocks were able to move against the trend, the most notable being Havana Electric railway with its spectacular 23 point jump in the heaviest day's trading of its brief but interesting career. Until a few weeks ago no trading in this stock had taken place in about eight years and its activity is believed to be due to buying for control by the electric bond and share corporation interests.

Around noon the bears launched an attack against the high priced motor and industrial stocks which resulted in a sharp decline in prices but which, apparently, was not successful in bringing out any great quantity of stocks. Following this attack the market was again inactive.

The drop in Maxwell Motors, class B stock to 106 1/2, a loss of 20 points from the recent high, was a feature of the motor shares.

The buoyant situation in the oil stocks, which opened the current week was almost completely missing today.

Considerable disappointment is being expressed in the speculative district over the failure of call money rates to decline to 3 1/2 or even three per cent. It is reported that some of the banks are employing a good volume of funds in the London market, where rates are about one per cent higher.

Brooklyn-Manhattan transit advanced to a new high at 61 1/2. International Tel and Tel was a leader in the utilities. Gimbel Brothers gained five points and established a new high at 62, while Macy was up two points and Montgomery Ward one.

The bulk of the copper, sugar, Tobacco equipment, Independent Steel and railroad stocks were unusually inactive and as featureless as on the average midsummer season.

HARRIMAN AFTER MINE
MAGAZINES IN CAUCASUS

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Moscow, June 9.—It was expected today that the representative of the Harriman interests of New York, would sign a concession agreement tomorrow with the Soviet government which would give the Harriman interests exclusive rights to mine magazines in the Caucasus mountains.

W. A. Harriman is said to have agreed to pay $1,000,000 as a guarantee to carry through the concession with an expenditure of $4,000,000 for improvements, and to pay another million dollars as advance royalties.

KILLED WHEN HIS CAR RAN OVER TRAIN

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Greene, N. Y., June 9.—A coroner's inquest was being held here today in the death of Gibson Hibbard, 19-year-old farm boy killed when his automobile was struck by a Delaware, Lackawanna, and Western Railroad milk train here last night. His mother, seriously injured, will live, it was said at the Norwich Hospital today. It is thought that the brakes failed to stop the car and Hibbard then endeavored to run across the tracks ahead of the train. The vehicle was demolished and he was terribly mangled.

Health Officers

Are Needed in Every City With 50,000 Population Says Dr. Nicoll in Address at Mayors' Conference.

Radical changes necessary for improving local health administration were advocated by Dr. Matthias Nicoll, Jr., Wednesday night in an address before the health officers section of the State Conference of Mayors at Syracuse.

"Every city in the state with a population of over 50,000," said the commissioner, "should have a full-time health officer or commissioner." "and this official should be responsible only to the head of the local government and the people whom he serves." "These recommendations differ widely from present day practice for there are but one or two full-time health officers in the state today and most local health officers are responsible either to boards of health composed of lay persons or to the commissioner of a department of public safety.

For better health administration in smaller communities, Dr. Nicoll recommended a county health organization similar to that now functioning in Cattaraugus county. Under this plan local health officers would be retained as deputy county health officers but would be responsible to the county health officer for the proper performance of their duties. The larger cities would, of course, be exempted from county control.

Justifying the extra cost of carrying out his suggestions the commissioner said "A high tax rate is better than a high death rate." "The amount of money spent for health work as compared with other activities of government is a shamefully inadequate recognition of the importance of good health work. Each community can procure as much public health as it is able and willing to pay for."

Pact With France Unsatisfactory

To British Public and Press—Chamberlain Must be Restrained, Says Press—Foreign Office States That Agreement Also Protects Germany.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
London, June 9.—The security pact agreement reached at Geneva between France and Great Britain, and under which Britain agrees to defend France's western frontiers with British arms if necessary, was received by the British press today with marked coolness.

While the press expressed doubt and misgiving concerning the pact, the foreign office announced today that it is "unreservedly satisfied" with the agreement negotiated by Mr. Chamberlain.

"It is Britain's contribution to the peace of Europe," said the foreign office.

Neither the press nor the public apparently are satisfied with the semi-official French version of the pact's terms, as announced at Geneva. The agreement attracted widest attention throughout Britain today and was commented upon by most of the newspapers.

The Daily Telegraph warned its readers against forming too hasty conclusions concerning the agreement, pointing out that the versions published thus far are French versions, and that there are apparent "omissions."

"What does Britain get?" asks the Telegraph, after emphasizing that the published accounts fail to make it plain that the pact is a mutual obligation. The Telegraph also calls attention to the fact that Italy was apparently not included in the agreement and asks why not. Throughout the comment ran the intimation that the published version of the pact from French sources is inaccurate.

Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express comments in a sarcastic vein.

"Britain now adopts the Rhine frontier," the Express declared. "A century of isolation is ended. Great Britain now declares herself to be a continental power, pledged to war if the Rhine frontier is violated."

The Daily Chronicle also expressed considerable misgiving. It warned the British electorate to keep a close eye on the negotiations, and said that "unless Chamberlain, (the foreign minister), is restrained he will go further and further."

"There is no need of promising what we won't give" concluded the Chronicle.

In discussing the pact a foreign office official said today the Geneva agreement merely constitutes a basis for further amicable discussion as to details, thereby countering to some degree the optimistic French version that everything is settled.

To the press comment that France won all her points, the foreign office replied that it meant as much to Germany as to France because Germany's frontiers also are guaranteed.

Nothing in the pact, it was emphasized, will weaken the treaty of Versailles or the covenant of the league.

Despite advice from official London, sources stating explicitly that England's military power would be called into play only by invasion of Rhine frontiers, official French circles consider the Geneva declaration of Foreign Secretary Chamberlain practically makes England a guarantor of Poland's frontiers.

The Franco-Poland military alliance automatically engages France on the side of Poland in the event of German aggression. Germany's first aggression toward France on the Rhine would automatically engage Britain.

The British and French general staffs are now maintaining only a sort of loose liaison, but it is now expected that closer cooperation will result.

Coolidge Is Homeward BoundAfter Wrecking Largest Turnout in His Honor—Invasion a Personal Triumph in Two Ways.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

En Route to Washington With President Coolidge, June 9.—President Coolidge, homeward bound from the greatest reception he ever received in his political career, was traveling eastward toward Washington, there to stay but two weeks before embarking on a summer vacation that will keep him in New England until after Labor Day.During the twenty-seven hours that he stayed in the twin cities of Minnesota, where he featured in the hundredth anniversary of the first Norwegian settlement in America, President Coolidge witnessed the largest turnout in his honor that he has ever experienced. Approximately 60,000 people were jammed into the race track of the state fair grounds to hear his speech, every street of St. Paul and Minneapolis that he traversed was lined solidly.
The Coolidge invasion of the wheat belt was a personal triumph in two ways. First, he successfully demonstrated his popularity in that section of the country regarded as a La Pol-leite stronghold and second, hewiped out the odium of his only other attempt to address the people of the twin cities.In 1922, Mr. Coolidge, the vice-president, visited Minnesota in behalf of the re-election of Senator Frank B. Kellogg, competing with an exhausting heat and the prospect of a horse race he was bowed down and never completed his speech.
Yesterday he was cheered to the echo throughout a 45 minutes' address.On his way to the fair grounds sixteen miles of streets were packed with flag waving, enthusiastic children.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Geneva, June 9.—A plain New Englander, Jeremiah Smith, Jr., of Boston, has brought financial peace to Hungary. His simple report today to the council of the League of Nations was of immense importance to the country whose accounts were mostly deficits when he took over the position of commissioner general for Hungary little over a year ago.Hungary's finances now are balanced, the report stated.
Smith was appointed commissioner general for Hungary, April 8, 1924, taking the position of W. P. G. Harding, former governor of the Boston Federal Reserve Bank, could not accept because of illness.
An American was selected for the unique post, which for all purposes made Smith the financial czar of Hungary, because of his obvious neutrality.His task was to stabilize the Hungarian crown and balance the books of 1884 by a reconstruction loan of 250,000,000 gold crowns ($50,000,- 000).
Smith has accomplished his task in thirteen months.

Heavy Champion Fight Next Fall

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
New York, June 9.—A heavy-weight champion fight for next fall, with Jack Dempsey, defending his newly made nose, is more than a possibility, according to deep laid plans now under discussion by the people who promote championship fights.
The removal of Tom Gibbons from the list of contenders has simplified matters exceedingly. So long as Tom was undefeated, and so long as the memory of his gallant 15 round stand against the champion at Shelby was still green, a championship fight could hardly be figured without taking Tom into consideration. But Gene Tunney, a vastly improved fighter, knocked out the St. Paul contender in 12 rounds and thereby gained a technical right to be considered an opponent for Dempsey. After June 19, when Harry Wills meets Charley Weinert, the situation will be further clarified.
The predominant opinion in local fight circles is that Wills is going to shoot with everything he has in his bout with Weinert in order to prove his right to a meeting with Dempsey. And the opinion is that Wills will win by city blocks.
This process of elimination, if it works according to calculation, will inevitably bring Tunney and Wills together, the winner to have a crack at Dempsey. A Wills-Tunney fight on Labor Day is one of the things talked about. Billy Gibson, who manages Tunney, said today, he plans "to make Jack Dempsey decide whether he is a fighter or an actor."
"Fight Wills," said Gibson. "Sure we will fight Wills. That is exactly what we plan to do providing Dempsey stays in his shell, and providing, too, that Harry is able to dispose of Weinert on June 19."

"Tin Ears" Now Modish in Japan

Art of Plasticuffs is Making Rapid Headway — Promising Prospects Being Developed.
By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Tokyo, June 9.—However widespread depression may be in other lines of business in Japan, the "cufflifter" industry is flourishing. The crop of "tin ears" is not threatened by a shortage.
Which is to say that Japan is developing pugilistic ambitions and has begun to train her husky youths in the science, art or pastime of administering effectively, the soporific wallop. In still other words, Japan now is beginning to take up boxing in a serious way in the hope of developing a few sockers capable of competing with those of other lands. There are even some Japanese who indulge in the pleasant and harmless pastime of hoping that one day Nippon will produce a world's champion.
Good Outlook.
The nestor of Japanese boxing is Togo Koriyama, who knocked about the world for seventeen years, mostly in the United States, allowing scrappers of many lands to work over his features in the most approved fistie fashion. He has acquired a beautiful pair of demoralized ears, and his nose has been knocked askew in artistic fashion. Now he has undertaken to teach his young countrymen the tricks he learned.
Koriyama has an adequately equipped gymnasium at Mikage, where he conducts the Japan Boxing Association. According to Koriyama the raw material from which he hopes to harvest his crop of champions is decidedly promising.
There is one stalwart youth in Koriyama's camp of whom he is especially proud. He is known as "Fighting" Otoro.
That boy has a wallop that would make the heart of Jack Dempsey rejoice. "Koriyama declared. "I really think that when he has learned a little more about the game, Otoro will be able to make it interesting for any man of his size in the world."
Win Tournament.
Besides Otoro there are Iwami Yokoyama, Kyko, Kuba and Tanaka, all husky and willing scrappers who are earnestly striving to make themselves proficient in the profession they have adopted.
About a year ago Koriyama took a team of Japanese boxers to Shanghai and cleaned up the Chinese and Filipino knuckle-dusters in an Oriental tournament.
The boxers in Koriyama's stable are clever with their hands but rather shy, as yet, on the finer points of footwork. Another fault is their tendency to "blow up" when the fighting gets exciting. They are muscular, hard as nails, and by no means lacking in speed. Except for the vaunted prowess of Otoro, however, there are few signs of dynamite in their fists.

Equipment for Boy Scout Camp
Although the gift of two row boats by the Dutch Arms of New Paltz was the first to be received by the Ulster County Boy Scout organization, it was not the last as soon as this excellent gift was received the American Legion of Kingston came to the front and presented the camp with a very fine canoe.
Following this the Kiwanis Club of Kingston appointed a committee composed of Arthur Davis, Max Reben and Clarence Rowland, to meet the Scout Executive and work out some plan whereby the Kiwanis would have some part in equipping the camp. Result: The best row boat they can have made will carry the name Kiwanis on its bow.
Then to top all this off along comes Al Harder, president of Rotary Club, with the information that there will be one of the best canoes "Old Town" makes at camp and its name will be "Rotarian."
If such spirit as this continues, and there is reason to believe it will, as there are several other organizations in the county that are only waiting for their meeting night to roll around, when they will fall in line with the above Boy Scout boosters.
Besides this equipment headquarters is receiving a number of organizations are supplying them with prizes to be used in contests at camp, and in the meantime the applications continue to come in. Donald Zucca is the first boy to sign up for the entire season of eight weeks.

U. S. Balloonists Are Rescued
By German Steamship in the Atlantic Off Brazil—Two French and Two Belgian Balloons Missing.
By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Paris, June 9.—The two pilots of the American balloon "Goodyear," one of the two American entries in the international race from Brussels for the Gordon Bennett cup, were rescued by the German steamship Vaterland in the Atlantic off Brazil, France, today, according to La Liberte.
The balloon was found floating in the water. The pilot, W. T. Van Orman, and his aide, C. K. Weiland, both of Akron, Ohio, were now the worse for their experience, according to the newspaper.
The news reached La Liberte in a wireless direct from the Vaterland. This ship is not the reconnoitered George Washington, but a post-war German freighter.
The Belgian Aero Club, promoter of the race, was endeavoring to get trace of the balloons. The belief that the five balloons were swept seaward was due to the circumstances of the Spanish balloon, Hemperle, coming down on the sea yesterday. Its crew was rescued by an American steamer. Another balloon was forced down on the shore of the ocean by west winds.
The pilots of the missing balloons all are noted for their courage. Members of the Aero Club said the pilots realized the greatest hazard was that their balloons might be blown out over the Atlantic Ocean, but that they hoped a north air current would carry them to England.
If this expected north air current did not appear then, Aero Club officials said, there was a possibility one or more of the balloons might be forced to the water through lack of gas or ballast.
The missing balloons are, in addition to the American entry, two French and two Belgian balloons. The pilot of one of the Belgian balloons is Ernest De Murter, who holds the original Gordon Bennett cup.
